FBI charges 2 with selling U.S. secrets

The FBI revealed two "classic" spy scenarios Tuesday as a reported KGB agent was charged with selling secret documents to the Soviets and — in an unrelated case — a Naval intelligence analyst was accused of selling secret satellite photographs to the British Jane's Defence Weekly. Agents on Monday arrested Alice Michelson, 67, of East Berlin trying to leave from New York's Kennedy Airport for Czechoslovakia — laden with classified government cables hidden in a cigarette pack. And the arrest of Samuel L. Morison, 40, of Crofton, Md., marks the first time the U.S. government has charged an employee with selling secrets not to a foreign government but to a corporation.
